Climate information and services (CIS) are essential for decision-making in the context of climate change. This e-tutorial aims to provide a comprehensive overview of CIS, including its definition, uses, and the role of legislation in strengthening CIS and services. The tutorial is structured as follows:

- Introduction
- Definition of CIS
- Uses of CIS in development planning and policy
- Role of legislation in strengthening CIS and services
- Examples of instruments available to governments for mainstreaming CIS and services

UNDP (United Nations Development Programme) is a leading organization in the field of CIS. The tutorial is based on the work of Kit Nicholson.

OBJECTIFS D'APPRENTISSAGE

After completing this e-tutorial, participants will be able to:

- Define climate information and services.
- Identify the uses of climate information and services in development planning and policy.
- Discuss the role of legislation in strengthening climate information and services.
- Provide examples of instruments available to governments for mainstreaming climate information and services.

INFORMATIONS SUPPLÉMENTAIRES

UN CC:Learn is a partnership of more than 30 multilateral organizations supporting countries to design and implement systematic, recurrent and results-oriented climate change learning. At the global level, the partnership supports knowledge-sharing, promotes the development of common climate change learning materials, and coordinates learning interventions through a collaboration of UN agencies and other partners. At the national level, UN CC:Learn supports countries in developing and implementing national climate change learning strategies. Through its engagement at the national and global levels, UN CC:Learn contributes to the implementation of Article 6 of the UNFCCC on training, education and public awareness-raising, and the 2012-2020 Doha Work Programme. Funding for UN CC:Learn is provided by the Swiss Government and UN partners. The Secretariat for UN CC:Learn is hosted by the UN Institute for Training and Research (UNITAR).
